Acrylic conformal paint is a high-viscosity one-component acrylic acid protective coating with low odor, short surface drying time, bright cured paint film, good adhesion, high and low temperature resistance, humidity and heat resistance, and excellent salt spray resistance. It can be applied to the anti-corrosion insulation of circuit boards in different use environments. The thickness of acrylic conformal paint is about 20-75um, and the thickness of conformal paint increases with the increase of solid content. Generally speaking, the thinner the conformal paint, the smaller the thickness.
