Armory management software (also referred to as quartermaster software) helps police forces and military branches to secure their weapons and equipment, simplifying check-in and check-out operations for all inventory. These solutions communicate with radio-frequency identification (RFID) or barcode technology to authenticate personnel and manage tagged inventory digitally, creating a secure database that monitors who uses equipment and when. Daily reporting features of the armory management software simplify auditing processes to track all assigned equipment as well as to identify necessary equipment maintenance. Armory managers use these tools to improve equipment flow, reduce inventory discrepancies, and ensure chain of custody so that authorized officials access the proper equipment.
