Abstracts

Calcined Soda also called washing soda, which is an old universal and environmentally friendly cleaning product with a thousand and one uses. Dissolved in water, it becomes a caustic, or alkaline, solution, and as such, causes dirt and grease to swell in water, while hardening agents such as lime are precipitated. We can suggest only a few of its many uses here: soaking and pre-washing of plant-based fabrics; washing up, and as a partial or complete substitute for harsher, chemical detergents; radical removal of grease everywhere, removal of algae from stone paving, and disinfecting wooden shelves. A little brochure delivered with the product goes into greater detail.
