Abstracts

Carburetor cleaners are either single-can aerosols or come in gallon-sized portions. The toxicity of a carburetor cleaner's main ingredients, by themselves, makes this cocktail a hazardous material, requiring educated and careful use. Each of the cleaner's ingredients derive from petroleum, a chemical compound, or draw from geological sources. Used in aerosol carburetor cleaners, a propellant ingredient makes the push-button, aluminum can 'spray' the compressed cleaner. Without safe use, the ingredients in this lethal type of gunk remover burns both skin and clothing.
