Abstracts

Chrysin is a bioflavonoid extracted from plants such as passion flowers and from honey or bee propolis. It has been widely known for its aromatase blocking property and used as an ingredient in most of the estrogen blocker. It is used in body building, treatment of anxiety, inflammation, and baldness. Increasing awareness regarding beneficial effects of Chrysin driving down the male estrogen level and upregulates the production of GnRH (a hormone which stimulates the production of follicle-stimulating hormone and luteinizing hormone) fuel the market over the forecasted period. The chrysin extract market has been also closely tied with the dietary supplement industry for its health nutritional benefits.
