Abstracts

Confectionery mix are a pre-fabricated mix of the major ingredient in the right proportion to reduce preparation time of the targeted confectionary and produce similar results over sub-sequent batches. The confectionery mixes are produced by collating ingredients required to actually produce a finished product with added preserving and enhancing agents. The advantage of reduction of preparation time is considered to be the major driver of the confectionery mix market owing to the increasing working-class populations, globally. The confectionery mix market is expected to witness a higher demand from the “free-from” segment. The Europe region is expected to dominate the confectionery mix market over the forecast period owing to its high per capita confectionery products consumption over the forecast period.
