Abstracts

Domperidone tablet is a peripheral dopamine receptor blocker, which directly acts on gastrointestinal wall. It can increase the tension of lower esophageal sphincter, prevent gastroesophageal reflux, enhance gastric peristalsis, promote gastric emptying, coordinate gastric and duodenal motility, inhibit nausea and vomiting, and effectively prevent bile reflux without affecting gastric juice secretion. Domperidone tablets can not easily pass the blood-cerebrospinal fluid barrier and inhibit dopamine receptors in the brain. Therefore, there are no neurological and psychiatric adverse reactions such as extrapyramidal system.
