Abstracts

Flax Lignans, also known as open loop isoglucoside, is a plant estrogen very similar to human estrogen. It is known as an anticancer substance and is found in all kinds of fruits, vegetables, beans and cereals, but not in high amounts. Linseed is mainly found in linseed, and its content depends on the flax variety, climate and ecological conditions. Generally, it accounts for 0.9% ~ 1.5% of the seed weight, which is 100 ~ 800 times higher than other 66 foods known to contain lignans. Therefore, linseed is also known as the 'king of lignans'.
