Abstracts

Glob tops are usually epoxies that are dispensed to cover a single chip in chip-on-board (COB) applications. They are most frequently used to encapsulate wire-bonded dies, since the wires bonds often need physical strengthening provided by epoxy, and other methods like conformal coatings or underfilling don't provide the same protection. Glob-top epoxies are thixotropic, meaning their viscosity is variable - becoming less viscous under physical agitation and more viscous under static conditions. They provide 'controlled flow' - self-leveling without running over the applied area.
