Abstracts

Label printer applicator machines satisfy a number of product identification needs. They can be used to label primary products, secondary packaging and pallets. In all cases, they all reduce costs associated with hand applying labels by doing it in-line automatically.

Apply pre-printed labels to a variety of surfaces with tamp, blow or wipe applicator configurations with label applicator machines. Or print and apply labels in-line with automated printer applicators.

These models are available with a number of industry leading thermal print engines including those from Zebra, Sato and others. Like printer applicators, print and apply machines are available in a number of configurations to suit a variety of applications.

They are easily integrated into shop floor systems and offer ease-of-use and top quality print when bar code readability is critical.
