Abstracts

Liquid coatings, also referred to as wet coatings, are majorly used where powder coatings are not applicable to provide finishing to products as well as assembled components and parts. Liquid coatings also provide noise control, corrosion and chemical resistance, wear resistance and non-stick, abrasion resistance. Liquid coatings have material efficiency of around 35%. They give a decorative look to the surface on which they are applied and protect the surface from rust and damage, such as scratches, etc. Liquid Coatings are generally applied using a spray equipment to create a uniform thickness of the paint layer.
