Abstracts

Pasta filata cheese is also known as spun paste or stretched curd. Pasta filata refers to the process of making cheese, in which heating and stretching curd takes place directly before forming a final cheese. This process is used to achieve desirable cooking characteristics and is mostly performed to produce mozzarella cheese. This is a traditional method, in which fresh curd is submerged into hot water and stretched by hand. Whereas, commercially pasta filata is made using mechanical mixers, in order to produce pasta filata cheese in bulk quantity.
