Abstracts

Premixed flour refers to the baking ingredients that are pre-mixed according to the recipe and then sold to the manufacturer for use. It is a composite semi-finished product that contains some baking technology in the form of compound powder. It contains very advanced physics, chemistry, biology and other cutting-edge technology, but in a very ordinary appearance and simple and popular form before the baker. It's not a normal ingredient. Premix is a professional blend of complex food materials to reduce the professional, technical and failure rate.
