Abstracts

Sodium lauryl sulfate is an anionic surfactant made from coconut oil or palm oil. These oils are rich in fatty acids that provide lauric acid. Initially, coconut oil is heated with water in the presence of sodium hydroxide that converts the coconut oil to fatty acids. Subsequently, these fatty acids are converted to fatty alcohols by a hydrogenation process. These fatty alcohols are also known as lauryl alcohol, which is then converted to lauryl sulfate by sulfonation process. The final step involves the reaction of lauryl sulfate with sodium hydroxide to obtain sodium lauryl sulfate.
