Ultrasonic jewelry cleaner USES ultrasonic sound waves to remove dirt and dirt from jewelry. There is a plug-in device, called a transducer, that converts power into ultrasonic waves. These sound waves travel through the liquid, creating thousands of tiny bubbles. These bubbles implode in contact with dirty objects. The bubble implodes with tremendous force, blowing away any dirt and particles from the dirt. This process is called cavitation. Ultrasonic waves can reach deep grooves, cracks, and holes, so the use of ultrasonic cleaners can often produce a more professional and complete cleaning job.
