Geotechnical and Structural Monitoring Devices can provide information about the physical properties of the subsurface environment, for example, density, competence, and thickness of layers of soil or sediment. Geotechnical and Structural Monitoring Devices can provide information about stratigraphy, estimate depth to groundwater, or approximate hydraulic conductivity. An investigator must understand the properties and structure of soils and sediments to characterize a site accurately, as these conditions will affect sampling strategies and selection of technologies. Knowledge of the subsurface will also be critical when determining the location, extent, fate and transport, and attenuation of subsurface contaminants.
