The major benefits of using garment steamers in place of iron are that they are easy to use, lightweight, flexible, and remove wrinkles from almost any type of fabric. In addition, a portable, handheld steamer can be used while traveling, and it eliminates the need for an ironing board to go along with an iron. The adoption of garment steamers eliminates the chances of causing any burns or damage to any fabrics, which may happen in the case of traditional irons. This factor is driving the growth of the garment steamers market across North America.

During the initial stage of COVID-19, due to supply chain disruptions, the market experienced losses due to stoppage in manufacturing and distribution services. Later, due to lockdowns and work-from-home culture, the demand for garment steamers systems has risen. Post-pandemic, the market is experiencing gradual growth according to seasonal demand fluctuations. Slowly and gradually, manufacturing units are being operationalized, and various industries are recovering, which will positively impact the garment steamers market.

The rising demand for garment steamers is creating lucrative opportunities for garment steamer manufacturers in the garment steamers market in North America. Continuous innovations by the major manufacturers are witnessed in the market. For instance, SALAV USA provides garment steamers that utilize high temperatures up to 220°F to kill 99.9% of germs, bacteria, viruses, mold, mildew, allergens, and bugs, such as bed bugs and dust mites. It is safe to use on most garments. The continuous innovations and integration of advanced technologies, along with ongoing research and development, bolster the growth of the garment steamers market in North America.
