Abstracts

Stable sales from marketed products, maturing pipeline and focus on targeting unmet needs in CNS diseases- Acorda (ACOR) has not disappointed its investors (YoY gain of 49.68%). Top-line data from two separate proof-of-concept trials of AMPYRA in treating post-stroke deficits and cerebral palsy (CP) showed improved walking in people with post-stroke deficits and was statistically significant for the timed 25 ft walking measure. ACOR plans to proceed with a pivotal study in post-stroke deficits. Efficacy data from the PhII POC study in CP suggested potential treatment activity on measures of walking and hand strength; however, ACOR is assessing the clinical significance in the setting to decide whether to move AMPYRA forward in this indication. We expect further improvement in Ampyra's sales driven by increase in...
