Abstracts

The Global Military Helicopter market is on the verge of a generational leap with next generation of military helicopter airframes, namely, Bell V-280 Valor and Sikorsky's SB<1 Defiant, being developed under the JMR-FVL program; scheduled to take to skies for their maiden flights in late 2017 promising the realization of a significant expansion of the operational spectrum & performance capabilities of rotorcrafts along with the planned incorporation of new, more powerful & efficient turboshaft engines being developed by the industry under the Improved Engine Turbine Program (IETP) and Future Advanced Turbine Engine (FATE) programs.

The shifting global world order and the emerging geopolitical realities have been extremely favorable for defense spending with the global defense spending registering its first ever increase since 2011 in 2015 and gaining further traction in 2016 with projections indicating towards a steady growth in global defense spending through 2025. Military helicopters have been a key element of the traditional force structure and their rapidly evolving capabilities are making them even more indispensable for conducting a wide range of military missions. The projected market scenario for defense spending, also being touted as the decade of growth resurgence, is likely to provide significant tailwinds to military helicopter segment as well with a number of large ticket military helicopter contracts already kicked off, underway or in pipeline stage across most traditional & emerging markets aimed at replacement, fleet growth or capabilities expansion.
