Abstracts

This NRG Expert report provides a by country look at the state of Electricity Deregulation on a Global Scale. The momentum towards liberalization of the electricity supply industry continues around the world but it proceeds at varying paces. As a region, only the EU is moving systematically in a coordinated manner, while other markets are developing new structures on an individual country basis. Some are calling for a return to government control to encourage decision making and planners should be aware of this potential hazard in the path to liberalization.
