Abstracts

The global Chlorella Extract Market size is valued at USD 1344 million in 2024 and is projected to reach USD 2633.1 million by 2032, registering a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.77% over the forecast period.

The chlorella extract market is witnessing robust growth driven by increasing demand for plant-based protein, detoxification supplements, and functional food ingredients. Chlorella is a freshwater green algae rich in chlorophyll, protein, vitamins, and antioxidants used in detox, immunity, and nutrition supplements. Manufacturers are focusing on cell-wall broken chlorella powder extracts for enhanced digestibility, high-protein content extracts for functional foods, and standardised chlorophyll formulations. Growth is supported by rising vegan nutrition trends, expanding detox supplement market, and integration into green superfood beverages. Challenges include taste and odour masking in food formulations, stringent quality standards for microalgae cultivation, and heavy metal contamination risks. Recent developments include Sun Chlorella launching cell-wall broken chlorella extracts, Roquette introducing high-protein chlorella ingredients for foods, and Green Source Organics enhancing chlorophyll-standardised chlorella extracts for supplements.

Major trends include development of cell-wall broken chlorella extracts for enhanced bioavailability and high-protein extracts for functional food applications.

Drivers are rising vegan and plant-based nutrition demand, growing detox supplement market, and increasing integration of chlorella in superfood beverages.

Challenges include taste and odour formulation masking, quality control for microalgae cultivation, and contamination risks requiring stringent testing.

Companies focus on enhancing digestibility through cell-wall disruption, developing high-protein and chlorophyll-standardised extracts, and ensuring clean cultivation processes.

Recent developments include Sun Chlorella launching bioavailable extracts, Roquette introducing food-grade chlorella protein ingredients, and Green Source enhancing chlorophyll-standardised extracts.
