Abstracts

The global Rutin Extract Market size is valued at USD 353.9 million in 2024 and is projected to reach USD 517.3 million by 2032, registering a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.86% over the forecast period.

The rutin extract market is witnessing stable growth driven by its widespread use as an antioxidant and vascular health supplement ingredient. Rutin, a flavonoid glycoside found in buckwheat, citrus fruits, and sophora flowers, offers anti-inflammatory, capillary-strengthening, and blood circulation benefits. Manufacturers are focusing on high-purity rutin extraction, water-soluble powdered forms for beverages, and encapsulated extracts for vascular health supplements. Growth is supported by rising demand for natural antioxidants, integration in vein health and cardiovascular formulations, and expansion of herbal ingredient portfolios in nutraceuticals. Challenges include raw material supply variability depending on plant source, solubility limitations in beverages, and regulatory restrictions on therapeutic claims. Recent developments include Xi'an Greena Biotech launching high-purity rutin extracts from sophora japonica, Shaanxi Jiahe introducing water-soluble rutin powders, and Sabinsa enhancing rutin formulations for vascular support supplements.

Major trends include development of high-purity rutin extracts for antioxidant, vascular health, and anti-inflammatory supplement applications.

Drivers are increasing demand for natural flavonoid antioxidants, rising use in vein health and circulation supplements, and integration into functional beverages.

Challenges include raw material supply dependence on plant species, solubility limitations for beverage formulations, and health claim regulatory approvals.

Companies focus on enhancing extraction purity, developing water-soluble powders, and integrating rutin into vascular health and anti-inflammatory supplement formulations.

Recent developments include Xi'an Greena launching sophora-derived rutin extracts, Shaanxi Jiahe introducing soluble rutin powders, and Sabinsa enhancing vascular health rutin supplements.
