Abstracts

The global St. John's Wort Extract Market size is valued at USD 378.5 million in 2024 and is projected to reach USD 546.1 million by 2032, registering a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.69% over the forecast period.

The St. John's Wort extract market is witnessing stable growth driven by its extensive use in herbal supplements for mood enhancement and mild depression treatment. St. John's Wort (Hypericum perforatum) extracts contain hypericin and hyperforin, offering antidepressant and anxiolytic effects through serotonin modulation. Manufacturers are focusing on hypericin-standardised extracts, solvent-free extraction processes, and encapsulated formulations for supplements. Growth is supported by rising demand for natural mood support products, integration of herbal antidepressants in nutraceutical portfolios, and consumer preference for plant-based mental health alternatives. Challenges include potential drug interactions with pharmaceuticals, regulatory restrictions on depression claims in many regions, and variability in active compound content. Recent developments include Gaia Herbs launching hypericin-standardised St. John's Wort capsules, Nature's Way introducing high-potency extracts for mood support, and NOW Foods enhancing St. John's Wort formulations with validated hyperforin content.

Major trends include development of hypericin and hyperforin-standardised St. John's Wort extracts for mood support supplements.

Drivers are increasing demand for natural antidepressant alternatives, integration in herbal mental wellness portfolios, and consumer preference for plant-based mood products.

Challenges include potential interactions with prescription medications, regulatory restrictions on depression treatment claims, and variability in hypericin content due to harvesting conditions.

Companies focus on enhancing extraction purity, standardising active compounds, and developing encapsulated formulations for bioavailability and safety.

Recent developments include Gaia Herbs launching standardised capsules, Nature's Way introducing high-potency mood extracts, and NOW Foods enhancing hyperforin-validated products.
