Abstracts

Hemapheresis is a medical procedure that involves removing whole blood from a donor's body for separating and analyzing the individual components of the blood so that desired blood component can be removed. It generally works on the basis of two common techniques known as membrane separation and centrifugation. This procedure is used for the collection of the blood components namely, plasma and platelets. It is also widely used for the treatment of neurological disorders, blood disorders, cardiovascular disorders, and in several other blood-related disorders. Hemapheresis procedures are performed across hospitals and blood collection centers.

The global hemapheresis market is estimated to grow at a significant rate during the forecast period owing to the increasing prevalence of the chronic diseases across the globe and growing demand for plasma in the pharmaceuticals and biotechnology companies for the development of plasma-derived medicines. Further, increasing number of complex surgeries, increasing awareness and concern for blood safety and growing demand of blood components, and public and private funding are also estimated to be the major factors that are driving the growth of the market.

The market for hemapheresis can be segmented into technology, products, and applications. On the basis of technology, the market can be further diversified into centrifugation and membrane separation. Furthermore, on the basis of products, the market can be sub-segmented into hemapheresis devices and hemapheresis disposables. Moreover, as per the applications, the market can be further analyzed into hematology, neurology, renal diseases, and other applications.

The global hemapheresis market is analyzed on the basis of the geographical regions that are contributing significantly towards the growth of the market. North America, Asia

Pacific, Europe and Rest of the World are the major regions contributing to the growth of the market. North America is estimated to hold the significant share owing to the high prevalence rate of chronic diseases in the region and well-established healthcare infrastructure. Whereas, the Asia-Pacific is estimated to have a considerable growth rate due to the increasing geriatric population, chronic diseases and rapidly increasing healthcare expenditure.

Some of the key market players of the hemapheresis market are Asahi Kasei Medical Co. Ltd., B Braun Melsungen AG, Cerus Corporation, Fenwal Inc., Fresenius SE & Co. KGAA, Haemonetics Corporation, Hemacare Corporation, Kaneka Corporation, Kawasumi Laboratories Inc., Medica S.P.A., Nikkiso Co. Ltd., Terumo BCT Inc., Therakos Inc. and so on.
