Abstracts

Networked Audio Products: Market Update examines key technologies enabling the wireless in-home streaming of music services to a variety of products – from AV receivers to docks and home theater systems. This report profiles suppliers of both chipset and software solutions, examines products most likely to include embedded solutions, and provides market forecasts.

“With growing libraries of downloaded music and increasing access to streamed sources, consumers desire ways in which to expand their audio enjoyment at home,” said Kurt Scherf, VP, principal analyst, Parks Associates. “Networked audio products are becoming more commonplace as a way to extend music into multiple parts of the home.”
