Abstracts

This report studies the global NdFeB Permanent Magnets (Neodymium-iron-boron) market status and forecast, categorizes the global NdFeB Permanent Magnets (Neodymium-iron-boron) market size (value & volume) by key players, type, application, and region.

This report focuses on the top players in North America, Europe, China, Japan, Southeast Asia India and Other regions (Middle East & Africa, Central & South America).

A neodymium magnet (also known as NdFeB, NIB or Neo magnet), the most widely used type of rare-earth magnet, is a permanent magnet made from an alloy of neodymium, iron and boron to form the Nd₂Fe₁₄B tetragonal crystalline structure. Developed independently in 1982 by General Motors and Sumitomo Special Metals, neodymium magnets are the strongest type of permanent magnet commercially available. They have replaced other types of magnets in many applications in modern products that require strong permanent magnets, such as motors in cordless tools, hard disk drives and magnetic fasteners.

The growing demand for high magnetic strength and miniaturization of equipment in existing and emerging applications is majorly driving the global market for NdFeB magnets. The government initiatives to stimulate the use of green technologies so as to decrease the greenhouse gas emissions is expected to drive the growth of the global NdFeB magnet market. The high cost, low Curie temperature and propensity to undergo oxidation represent the major constraints to the applications of NdFeB magnets. Asia Pacific is expected to maintain its position over the forecast period. South America's market is predicted to experience high growth and is projected to grow at a high CAGR during the forecast period. The market in Asia Pacific is growing at a fast pace on account of increasing demand from end user industries, particularly in countries such as China and Japan. The market in Europe increased slowly.

The global NdFeB Permanent Magnets (Neodymium-iron-boron) market is valued at xx million US$ in 2017 and will reach xx million US$ by the end of 2025, growing at a CAGR of xx% during 2018-2025.
