Abstracts

In recent years gems & jewellery has emerged as the third most popular item of consumption after real estates and automobiles in China. Chinese consumers love jewellery for their intrinsic value, and jewellery are great vehicles to display wealth and success. China gems & jewellery market is expected to triple in 2015 from the current market in 2011. It is anticipated that its market will cross the figure of US$ 200 Billion by 2015.

Gold jewellery is the most preferred jewellery in China it holds more than 40% market share in 2011. Gold jewellery demand is generated by China's third and fourth tier cities, where continued improvements in infrastructure have allowed retail chains to expand their networks of store and tap into the growing pool of demand among the local consumers. The other favourite jewellery for Chinese consumers is gem-set jewellery, whose market size is expected to touch US$ 50 Billion by 2015. Platinum jewellery, Diamond jewellery and Silver jewellery are expected to grow frequently in Chinese jewellery market. But, Palladium jewellery is in the declining trend and expected to continue this trend in till 2015.

By price range jewellery section: Chinese consumers mostly buy gems & jewellery retail price ranging from US$ 250 to US$ 1300. Middle class families are driving this market as they can afford this price range of the gems and jewellery products. By tier cities jewellery market analysis: Tier III and lower cities are predicted to contribute to more than 42% of the Chinese gems & jewellery market by 2015.

In China gems & jewellery player's perspective, there are three groups of gems and jewellery brands i.e. Chinese brands, Hong Kong brands and foreign brands. The consumer base is also divided into three segments, i.e. high-end, mid-end, and low-end. The high-end market is dominated by foreign brands, such as Cartier and Tiffany; the mid-end brand market is subject to fierce competition from both domestic players and Hong Kong players; while the low-end market is hold mainly by small brands segmented all over the country.
