Abstracts

The global knee replacement market is growing year on year. The core reason for market growth are; rising per capita health expenditure, people are more conscious about their health, people are adopting less-invasive surgical procedure, improved government initiative and public healthcare expenditure, expansion of healthcare industry, medical device and product getting faster approval from regulation authorities, rising ageing population along with overall population. Rising accident, which leads to injuries and trauma, will boost the global knee replacement market in future. According to Renub Research analysis Knee replacement market is expected to value more than 12 Billion by the end of the year 2025.

Rising ageing population across the world will drive the knee replacement market to a great extent. Many developed regions will strategically allocate budget for an ageing population because the geriatric population is more prone to the disease and especially joint disease. Therefore knee replacement will expand in the near future due to the rising ageing population. Rapid advancement or cutting edge technology in knee replacement like robotic arm which assists in partial knee replacement will again propel the knee replacement market in the future course of time.

These days, people are more health conscious and prefer less invasive surgical procedure rather than a conventional surgical procedure. Therefore, now, people are more participating in treatment due to the painless technique of surgery. Knee replacement is a surgical procedure, where the painful knee is replaced with prosthetic that is made up of ceramic or metal. A doctor recommends knee replacement if another option of treatment like medication does not apply to relieve pain. Based on the requirement and patient condition, the knee is fully or partially replaced.
