Abstracts

IAM has been widely accepted nowadays across verticals as most of the technologies (Hardware and software) are running different operating systems and applications. Moreover, these applications are hosted by a 3rd party remote vendor and are accessed remotely. Also with the rise in cyber attacks and security breach most of the administrations and IT departments are working in a synchronized way across different organizations. Hence IAM providers need to provide solutions with the right mix of compatibility, accessibility and limited cost.
