Abstracts

The corrugated box industry is an inevitable part of manufacturing sectors which rely heavily on ample corrugated packaging for finished goods transportation and handling. Despite this importance, the Indian corrugated box industry faces numerous challenges and hurdles in its growth pace due to the very nature of the industry that comprises thousands of small players running manual/semi-automatic plants to cater to the needs of local industries. However, the tide of liberalization and globalization has brought a new ray of hope for Indian manufacturers who are now more willing to upgrade technology and turn to completely automatic lines capable of faster, quality driven and economical production.

The latest research by RNCOS titled, "Corrugated Boxes Market Forecast to 2017", unfolds the market dynamics of the corrugated box industry in India with major focus on the scenario of automatic corrugated boxes. The report describes in detail the market size of global corrugated industry, size of India's corrugated boxes industry, market segmentation by large-small players, organized-unorganized market and sector wise consumption and regional distribution of players. Additionally, the report provides an in-depth analysis of the trade scenario of the corrugated boxes' industry.
