Abstracts

The corrugated box industry is an inevitable part of manufacturing sectors which rely heavily on ample corrugated packaging for finished goods transportation and handling. Despite this importance, the Indian corrugated box industry has faced numerous challenges and hurdles in its growth pace due to the very nature of the industry comprising thousands of small players running manual/semi-automatic plants to cater to the needs of local nearby industries. However, the tide of liberalization and globalization has brought new ray of hope for Indian manufacturers who are now more willing to upgrade technology and turn into completely automatic lines capable of faster, quality driven and economical production.

The latest research by RNCOS titled, "Corrugated Boxes Market in India" unfolds the market dynamics of corrugated box industry in India with major focus on the scenario of automatic corrugated boxes. The report describes in detail the market size of corrugated boxes, market segmentation by large-small players, organized-unorganized market and an estimated regional distribution of players. Vital insights of consumer industries as well as apex industry associations such as FCBN, SICBMA etc. have been obtained and considered while presenting the market dynamics.
