Abstracts

Introduction:

IFRS is a global Accounting principle that is globally accepted and is published by IASB for the support to those who adopt the comparable, quality and presentation of financial statements.

This makes ease in interpretation of financial statements.

In the recent years there has been a strong push for adoption of IFRS by International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) the reason is the increase in the international trade across the borders, investments transactions in cross border which involves the development and presentation of financial accounts and reports.

This has brought the need for the developing and developed countries to adopt IFRS.

The process to adopt IFRS gained an important and significant lift in 2002 (Clements, Neill, & Stovall, 2010).
