Abstracts

If change is not carried by State of Kuwait, it will ultimately lead the public to push government toward legalization of political process. The existence of political parties is neither legalized nor prohibited in the political system since its establishment in 1961. But since 2011 the citizens are striving for change. The present political system failed to deliver the desired out outcomes. Corruption, mismanaging, lack of equality and fairness in tribal people and immigrants are some of the examples showing ineffectiveness of present semi-democratic political system of Kuwait. The main point of argument is that political freedom should be granted to Kuwaiti citizens and legal right of existence of political parties should be granted. The stance is to build an argument in favor of having a rational political procedure in Kuwait. Cont... (1000 words of this report)
