Description

Gynecological inflammation is a disease that troubles contemporary women. According to WHO's survey on the health conditions of women all over the world, the incidence of gynecological disease has reached over 65% and over 70% among women of childbearing age. The number of cases of urinary system infections has hit over 300 million around the world, which leads to the rapid expansion of gynecological drug market. The epidemiological study conducted by China also shows that the incidence of reproductive tract infection among urban married women has exceeded 40% in China and that many women suffer from different degrees of urinary system infection in their lifetime.

Nifuratel can effectively kill those bacteria, protozoa and molds that lead to vaginal infections without any acute or chronic side effects. Due to its pleiotropic effects, nifuratel can be used for all kinds of vaginitis caused by bacteria, trichomonas and molds infection. Nifuratel, a variety of broad-spectrum antimicrobial agents with two methods of application: oral and external application, was developed by Doppel Farmaceutici. S. r. l. with the trade name of Macmiror/ Macmiror. In 2001, SFDA approved nifuratel made by Doppel Farmaceutici. S. r. l. to be sold in China with such main species as sugarcoated tablets, vaginal tablets and vaginal suppositories under the trade names of Macmiror and Macmiror Complex. Nifuratel develops fast after entering China with annual sales rising from CNY 53.2 thousand in 2005 to CNY 38.03 million in 2014 and CAGR reaching 24.43% and some Chinese enterprises have also started to make generic drugs.

With the fast development of Chinese economy and the improvement of national health insurance system, many kinds of gynecological inflammation drugs, driven by new concepts of treatment, have become affordable to civilians. In general, the gynecological anti-infective market in sample hospitals is dominated by pharmaceutical preparations which operate quickly. On the other hand, Chinese patent medicine made by local enterprises fail to enter the market, instead, they are widely used in mother and child healthcare hospitals, medical institutions based in communities as well as the rural market.
