Chain catering refers to taking chain operation patterns of regular chain and franchise store in catering industry and provides uniform services for customers. It carries out centralized procurement and decentralized sales, achieving economic benefits of scale through normalized management.

China's chain catering industry started in 1990s. After entered 21th century, it begins to have a rapid development. At present, chain catering enterprises in China's market cover Chinese and western dinners as well as the fast food market. With the rapid growth of Chinese national economy and the residents' income increasing gradually and the demands for food consumption will greatly increase. The major customers of China's catering industry are still urban residents. The huge market of rural catering has not been developed yet. From the view of the continuity and sustainability of catering market, the huge rural catering market will provide a wide development space for China's catering economy.

China's chain catering industry is still in the primary stage. The standardized construction in most chain catering enterprises is not perfect. The cost of operation increases sharply with the increase of branches. It can be predicted that in the near future the branded chain of dinner enterprises will be strengthened. It is very difficult to fully realize the standardization of dishes process. The single specialty will be the first one to realize standardized operation; comparatively speaking, cooking some dishes such as fast food and hot pot is relatively simple so that it is possible and quick to fully realize standardized operation for such dishes.

Windfall benefit age of China's catering industry has become the history. Popular and rational consumption become the mainstream. Therefore, the best choice to develop and live is only to merger and affiliate, following the way of chain operation and scale economy. Depending on the standardized products and normalized services and management, chain catering enterprises are continually improving their status in China's market.
