Abstracts

Silk is a long continuous fiber made from the solidification of silk liquid secreted by the mature silkworm during cocooning. Depending on the food of the silkworm, it can be divided into mulberry silk, sericulture silk, cassava silk and camphor silk and so on. Silk is mainly used in the silk industry. With the global economic development, consumers' living standards have improved and become more and more favorable to products made of silk such as clothing or household products, which has promoted the market demand for silk.

Mulberry silk as raw material, a number of cocoon silk will be held together and reeled into filament, also known as silk. Machine reeled silk is called plant reeled silk. At present, it is rare to see hand-reeled silk, and the silk produced in China and exported are basically plant reeled silk.

China is the world's leading exporter of plant reeled silk. According to CRI's analysis, in 2021, China exported 1,385.29 tons of plant reeled silk, down 32.76% year-on-year, with an export value of US$82,310,200, down 19.67% year-on-year. From January to November 2022, China exported 3,590.16 tons of plant reeled silk, up 202.46% year-on-year, with an export value of US$222 million, up 223.35% year-on-year.

In 2021, China exported plant reeled silk to seventeen countries around the world. CRI analyzed that Italy, Romania, India, Vietnam and Slovenia were the main export destinations of plant reeled silk in China by export volume. In 2021, China exported 449.03 tons of plant reeled silk to Italy, accounting for 32.41% of the total plant reeled silk export volume that year, and the export value was US$28.365 million, accounting for 34.46% of the total export value.

China is a traditional mulberry silkworm breeding country and the world's leading producer and exporter of plant reeled silk. CRI expects the global market demand for plant reeled silk to continue to rise from 2023-2032 in line with the development of the global textile industry, which will help boost the growth of China's plant reeled silk exports.
