The publication of the 'Vietnam WIFI Receiving Devices Export Guide 2023-2026' aims provide global purchasers and traders with authoritative and systematic information on Vietnam WIFI receiving devices exports, helping them quickly find reliable supply channels in Vietnam and shorten the market research and matching cycle. It also provides valuable decision-making references for international trading companies and investment institutions.

Industry Overview

WiFi receiving devices fall under the sub-sectors of consumer electronics and Electronic Manufacturing Services (EMS). Vietnam's WiFi receiving device industry is currently in a phase characterized by 'capacity transfer absorption combined with nascent large-scale production.'

WiFi receivers primarily comprise USB WiFi adapters, PCIe wireless network cards, and embedded WiFi modules. At their core, these devices rely on upstream capabilities in chip design and PCB manufacturing, while downstream, they connect with global brand owners and e-commerce channels.

Compared to the mature electronics manufacturing clusters in Shenzhen and Dongguan on the Chinese mainland, Vietnam still lags behind in terms of WiFi module design capabilities, RF debugging expertise, and high-end ODM development proficiency. However, against the backdrop of a restructuring global supply chain, Vietnam is gradually absorbing a portion of the manufacturing capacity for low-to-mid-range wireless networking equipment.

The key players in Vietnam's WiFi receiver industry primarily comprise foreign-invested electronics manufacturers, domestic electronics manufacturers, and local supply chain facilities serving multinational brands.

WiFi receivers manufactured in Vietnam are primarily targeted at markets in Europe, the Americas, and Asia—specifically the United States, the European Union, Japan, and select Southeast Asian nations. Exports typically operate under an OEM/ODM model, wherein products manufactured by Vietnamese factories are branded and subsequently sold by the brand owners.

Overall, Vietnam's WiFi receiver industry currently functions as a 'manufacturing hub' within the global wireless communication equipment supply chain, rather than as a center for technological innovation. Looking ahead, as global electronics manufacturing continues to shift its footprint toward Southeast Asia, the industry retains significant potential for further expansion.

Export Market Overview

The export market for Wi-Fi receiving devices from Vietnam continues to expand, exhibiting rapid growth.

According to CRI analysis, the scale of Vietnam's exports of Wi-Fi receiving devices has continued to grow in recent years. These exports are primarily concentrated in consumer-grade and enterprise-grade wireless access devices characterized by a high degree of standardization. Key growth factors include global demand expansion, supply chain relocation, industrial restructuring and the combined effect of Vietnam's manufacturing policies and export incentives.

According to CRI statistics, approximately 400 suppliers in Vietnam exported WIFI receiving devices in 2024, totaling US$ 1.33 billion, an increase of 211.7% year-on-year. In 2025, the value of Vietnam's WIFI receiving devices exports reached US$ 2.14 billion, an increase of approximately 60.8% year-on-year.

United State, China and Netherland are Vietnam's top three export destinations for WIFI receiving devices.

According to CRI analysis, United State, China and Netherland are Vietnam's top three export destinations for WIFI receiving devices, accounting for approximately 58.4%, 18.8% and 4.9% of total exports respectively in 2025.

CRI predicts that with international brands continuing to diversify their production capacity, Vietnam's manufacturing automation level improving and local supporting capabilities strengthening, Vietnam's WIFI receiving devices exports are expected to continue to grow.

Overview of Foreign Investment in Vietnam's WIFI Receiving Devices Industry

Investment Background Against the backdrop of global electronics manufacturing supply chain adjustments, European, American, and Asian brands are gradually shifting the assembly and some production capacity of products such as WiFi receivers and wireless network cards to Vietnam in order to reduce geopolitical risks and tariff uncertainties.

Vietnam possesses distinct cost and locational advantages, including lower labor costs, a relatively stable policy environment for the manufacturing sector, and a network of multilateral free trade agreements with Europe, the United States, Japan, and South Korea. These factors make Vietnam a highly attractive destination for export-oriented electronics manufacturing.

Investment Advantages

1. Political stability and rapid economic development. The Vietnamese government has strong governing capabilities, consistent policies, and a focus on economic development and improving people's livelihoods.
2. Relatively low labor costs.
3. Strategically located in the eastern part of the Indochina Peninsula, with a 3,260-kilometer coastline and numerous ports, transportation is convenient.

4. Relatively relaxed policies and regulations provide foreign investors with comprehensive legal protections and generous preferential policies.
5. Vietnam has a high level of openness to the outside world, with 19 free trade agreements signed or in progress. Investors can use platforms such as RCEP and the China-ASEAN Free Trade Area to explore a broader international market.

Investment Regulations

In accordance with Vietnam's Law on Investment and other relevant regulations, the electronic product manufacturing sector in Vietnam is not classified as a prohibited or restricted industry. Foreign investors may establish enterprises in the form of wholly foreign-owned entities or joint ventures. Eligible projects may benefit from preferential corporate income tax rates, tax exemption periods, preferential tariffs on imported equipment and raw materials, as well as preferential land-use policies within high-tech parks or key industrial zones.
