Abstracts

Executive Summary

The business jets industry is on a recovery path from the aftermath of the global recession that had impacted the market heavily through the tightening of corporate budgets for travel and hesitation for private-plane ownership. However, the manufacturing of new business jets is not expected to reach to pre-recession levels for almost another ten years. Deliveries of new business jets which stood at approximately 1,300 in 2008 reduced to a half by 2012. 2014 is expected to witness a marginal improvement in industry deliveries from 2013, though the market dynamics would remain challenging. There has been a growth in the bigger, longer-range business jets while the small and medium jet segment continues to face challenges.
