Executive Summary

India is fast becoming a leading luxury goods market in the world. The luxury market in the country is growing at a CAGR of approximately 18% and is projected to reach USD 15 million by 2016. A fast increasing urban middle class along with the growing number of high net worth individuals has attracted most luxury brands to tap the potential of this market.

Even though international players have big bets on the Indian luxury market, they struggle with various hurdles in the country including a thriving counterfeit market and the limited talent to market such products. Many players have adopted varied strategies to attract the Indian audience and increase sales, such as offering an affordable range of products, etc. The future outlook for the market is positive, as the segment is expected to witness strong performance.
