Abstracts

Oil and gas automation often utilizes sensors based on the internet of things (IoT), predictive and self-learning systems to increase productivity, and expert systems/use of artificial intelligence (AI) to fill in gaps brought on by a skilled labor shortage. A study by StrategyHelix indicates that the global oil and gas automation market is expected to increase by US$ 8,669 million from 2022 to 2028, garnering a CAGR of 6.8% during the forecast period.

The report provides up-to-date market size data for period 2018-2021 and forecast to 2028 covering key market aspects like sales value for oil and gas automation. The global oil and gas automation market is segmented on the basis of process, technology, and region. Based on process, the global oil and gas automation market is categorized into upstream, midstream, downstream. On the basis of technology, the global oil and gas automation market has been segmented into OT (PLC, SCADA, DCS, PLM, etc.), IT, IoT, robotics, AI. In terms of geography, the global oil and gas automation market has been segmented into North America, Asia Pacific, Europe, Middle East and Africa, Latin America.

The global oil and gas automation market is highly competitive. As of 2021, the major players in the global oil and gas automation market were ABB Ltd., AMETEK Inc., Baker Hughes Company, Emerson Electric Co., Fortive Corporation, Honeywell International Inc., Mitsubishi Electric Corporation, Protiviti Inc., Rockwell Automation Inc., Schneider Electric SE, Siemens AG, Yokogawa Electric Corporation.

Report Scope

Process: upstream, midstream, downstream

Technology: OT (PLC, SCADA, DCS, PLM, etc.), IT, IoT, robotics, AI

Region: North America, Asia Pacific, Europe, Middle East and Africa, Latin America

Years considered: this report covers the period 2018 to 2028
