Abstracts

According to Statistics MRC, the Global Blister Packaging Market is accounted for $24.10 billion in 2020 and is expected to reach $48.73 billion by 2028 growing at a CAGR of 9.2% during the forecast period. Some of the factors such as rising disposable income and tamper-evident design for product protection are propelling the market growth. However, not suitable for packaging heavy items is hampering the market growth.

Blister packaging solution is molded pieces of plastics mostly sealed to a sheet of paper or aluminum and are used to pack products such as tablets or high-volume of low-price consumer electronic products. Mainly, three types of materials are used in this type of packaging, plastic substrates as a forming film and paper & paperboard or aluminum as lidding materials.

Based on the product type, the carded segment is estimated to have a lucrative growth due to its capability to form dissimilar shapes, stack many products, and its ease of handling and admirable damage prevention properties. The rising demand from food packaging and e-commerce industries supports the growth of carded blister packaging.

By geography, the Asia Pacific is going to have lucrative growth during the forecast period. The dominance is owing to the strong economic growth of the region along with the positive outlook of the pharmaceutical industry. Further, the rising disposable income and higher healthcare expenditure across India and China are pouring the blister packaging market growth.

Some of the key players profiled in the Blister Packaging Market include ACG Pharmapack Pvt.
