Abstracts

According to Statistics MRC, the Global Edible Cannabis Market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 25.4% during the forecast period. Rapid growth in the legalization of cannabis across the globe and increasing use by food and beverage manufacturers are driving the market growth. However, health risks such as cancer, cardiovascular diseases, and other mental issues, associated with the consumption of cannabis may hamper the the market growth.

Edible cannabis is a food product that contains cannabinoids especially tetrahydrocannabinol (THC). Most edible cannabis includes THC (tetrahydrocannabinol) which can induce a wide range of effects including anxiety, euphoria, relaxation, fatigue, and increased appetite. It is used for recreational purposes and medical.

Based on the product, the solid foods segment is going to have lucrative growth during the forecast period due to the growth of cannabis-infused energy drinks. Solid edible cannabis is often used to treat patients with cancer-related symptoms, chronic pain, and anxiety. The presence of THC (tetrahydrocannabinol) in Cannabis makes the natural treatment popular which effectively reduces the symptoms and eases pain related to various conditions.

By geography, North America is going to have profitable growth during the forecast period.
