Abstracts

According to Statistics MRC, the Global Fungal Protein market is accounted for $3.85 billion in 2020 and is expected to reach $8.25 billion by 2028 growing at a CAGR of 10.0% during the forecast period. Growing demand for nutritious food along with the advantages of calorie reduction in foods, health benefits including health skin rejuvenation, eyesight improvement, immune system enhancement & cholesterol reduction and rising demand from animal nutrition application are the major factors driving the market growth. However, value chain disruptions throughout the globe due to corona virus pandemic are restraining the market growth.

Fungal protein, which is also known as mycoprotein, is low in caloric content and rich in protein. Its richness in fiber content has made the protein sought-after for limiting the fat intake. These are single-cell proteins used in pharmaceuticals, food and beverage and animal feed industries. Products including fusarium venenatum and yeast are used to extract nutrient-rich proteins.

Based on product, the fusarium venenatum segment is estimated to have a lucrative growth due to its ability to adapt to the large-scale fermentation processes. It finds application in production of industrial enzymes including trypsin and xylanase used in preparation of foodstuff. By geography, Europe is going to have high growth during forecast period due to favourable regulations & guidelines provided by government agencies for protein and dietary fiber intake level.

Some of the key players profiled in the Fungal Protein Market include AB Mauri, Alltech, Angel Yeast, Biorigin, Biospringer, DSM, Halcyon Proteins, Kerry Group, Lallemand, Inc, Leiber, Lesaffre Group, Mycotechnology, Inc, Ohly, Specialty Biotech and Synergy Flavors.
