Abstracts

The Global Silage Additives market is accounted for $0.63 billion in 2014 and is expected to reach $0.69 billion by 2022 growing at a CAGR of 1.14% during the forecast period 2014 to 2022. Industrialization of stock and animal protein industry is a favorable factor driving the market growth. This growth has shaped great opportunity and command for inventive products in animal diet. Focus to improve feed consumption and to advance the health in the animals is an additional factor for expansion in silage additives market. Increase in requirement for animal protein in the region has exerted force on livestock farmers.

Corn is a significant silage crop. Inoculants have developed into the most frequently used additives. The policy from European government to decrease imports of meat & raise in house making and financial assistance to stock farmers is expected to enhance the livestock industry. Bacterial inoculants have inbuilt advantages over other additives, including low down cost, security in handling, a low use rate, and no environmental problems. The Asia-Pacific region is planned to develop at the maximum rate during the forecast period.

The key players in the market include, Novozymes A/S, ADM, Evonik Industries AG, Volac International Limited, BASF, Schumann BioEnergy GmbH, Cargill Inc., ForFarmers, ADDCON and Lallemand.
