Global 4G and 5G Tariff Tracker - Insight into 200+ Operators' 5G pricing - 1-year subscription

Telecomspricing launched its 4G/5G Tariff Tracker Service in January 2020, then covering some 40 operators across 20 countries. Since then, many operators including MVNOs and sub-brands have launched 5G; the Q4 2023 edition covers 246 operators across 86 countries,.

The Tracker also includes operators' 4G pricing, there are still many operators that to-date do not make all its plans 5G-ready. This can be easily identified as marked in the database which technology is used for each plan.

Additionally, telecomspricing provides insight into the latest trends with its 20+ page report.

The key changes in 5G services include developments in technology aimed at providing improved coverage in urban areas and inside buildings. Together these developments provide improved download speeds as well as increased deployments to improve in-country 5G coverage.

The report identifies that:

5G is made available to a larger audience including the prepaid customer base.

Many sub-brands and MVNOs started to make their services 5G ready with many levying a charge for 5G.

Increasingly speed-dependent offers are added to operators' postpaid portfolios.

Operators changes cover from price increases to introducing more unlimited plans to overhauling their entire portfolios.

Details of upcoming 5G launches.

Other benefits include:

Telecomspricing highlights the changes made from update to update which allows the user to easily identify the change; and a brief summary of each change is provided with update.

New operators are added with each update at no extra cost.
