Abstracts

Australia air purifiers market stood at around $ 32 million in 2019 and is projected to reach $ 46 million in 2025, on the back of degrading air quality, rising cases of health issues and increasing awareness in the population. According to a report published by Australian Society of Clinical Immunology and Allergy Inc., around 20% of the Australian population has allergic diseases and this share is on the rise. The recent publications by the governmental agencies showed signs of increase in the particulate matter in air, specifically PM2.5, which is quite hazardous. The country has also been facing deterioration of air quality due to the bushfire events that increased the smoke haze. All these factors coupled with increasing consumer awareness about benefits of good indoor air quality are expected to increasing sales of air purifiers in Australia in the coming years.

Per unit prices have also been declining over the last few years, making the product more accessible to a larger section of the population. The new products that were launched in 2019, were more portable and advanced in technology than the previous product models. The industrial and commercial institutions specifically prefer such kind of products not only to clean the air around them, but also due to the fact that clean air around the workers increases their productivity and prevents them from being affected by airborne diseases.

Based on filter type, HEPA + activated carbon led the market in 2019 with share of 54.62% and the segment is anticipated to continue dominance until 2025 as these purifiers have no side-effects on human health and provide highly efficient air purification with HEPA filters removing dust as well as particulate matters and activated carbon filters facilitating odor removal.

Leading players operating in Australia air purifier market are HoMedics Australia Pty. Ltd., Inovaair Australia Pty. Ltd., Philips Electronics Australia Limited, Blueair AB, Beurer GmbH, Winix Inc., Breville Group Limited, Daikin Australia Pty. Ltd., Sharp Corporation of Australia Pty. Ltd., and Andatech Pty. Ltd. With growing air purifiers market in Australia, the companies have started launching new innovative models of air purifiers such as plasmacluster technology, which purifies the air by emitting positive and negative ions.
