Abstracts

The global ice cream market is valued at USD113.82 billion in 2021 and is growing at a CAGR of 6.47% in the forecast period to reach USD165.04 billion by 2027. Increased demand for convenience food products among millennials, rising disposable income of consumers, and the launch of ice cream in different flavors to entice customers to drive the demand for the global ice cream market in the forecast period.

The rise in the per capita income of consumers is enabling them to afford quality lifestyles and luxury products. Rapid urbanization and globalization are fueling consumer awareness about different ice cream brands, which is acting as a driver for the global ice cream market. The development of an efficient supply chain and technical innovations in deep freezer technology is aiding ice cream vendors to store ice cream edible for longer durations. Adopting attractive marketing strategies by the market players by investing in lucrative advertisements, social media campaigns, boardings, and posters boosts brand awareness and visibility among consumers. The surge in health consciousness among consumers makes the market players launch ice creams with high nutritional content and less sugar than conventional ice creams.

The global ice cream market is segmented on category, product type, distribution channel, company, and regional distribution. Based on category, the global ice cream market is divided into take-home ice cream, impulse ice cream, and artisan ice cream. Take-home ice cream is expected to hold the largest market share in the forecast period. The introduction of new flavors by the market players and increased consumption of ice cream as snack options are expected to accelerate the market demand in the forecast period.

Unilever PLC, Inspire Brands, Inc., Kahala Franchising, L.L.C., Lotte Corporation, Dairy Farmers of America, Inc., Gujarat Cooperative Milk Marketing Federation, International Dairy Queen Inc., Blue Bell Creameries, L.P., General Mills Inc., Nestlé SA, etc. are the major market players leading the growth of the global ice cream market.
