Abstracts

UAE ventilator market is anticipated to register growth with an impressive CAGR in the forecast period, 2023-2027, on the account of growing geriatric population of the country. Increasing instances of chronic diseases and thus the increased mortality due to these diseases further drive the growth of the UAE ventilator market in the upcoming five years. An outbreak of the pandemic novel coronavirus disease and its spread across the country has drastically increased the demand for ventilators. The growing number of ICU beds equipped with ventilators is some other factors that are projected to bolster the UAE ventilator market growth in the future five years.

Increasing Disease Burden Promises Market Growth

Increasing instances of chronic diseases along with the growing severity of these diseases are actively driving the growth of the UAE ventilator market in the upcoming five years. Increasing chronic diseases like cardiovascular diseases, neurological diseases, and renal failures, coupled with increasing instances of infectious diseases further support the growth of the UAE ventilator market in the next five years.

Cardiovascular diseases are responsible for 40% of the deaths in the country. The instances of cardiovascular diseases in young adults are further increasing rapidly and thus aiding the growth of the UAE ventilator market in the future five years.

Furthermore, cancer cases have been recording new cases and deaths rapidly in recent years. In 2017, cancer-related deaths in the UAE reached 955, about 10.82% of total deaths. The crude cancer death rate was 10.26/100,000 people, with breast cancer ranked first (110 deaths), colon cancer ranked second (98 deaths), lung cancer ranked third (80 deaths), and leukemia ranked fourth (52 cases). In 2020, breast cancer caused 222 deaths in the United Arab Emirates, followed by lung cancer with 187 deaths. In that year, the number of deaths caused by cancer among women in the UAE was 884 compared to 1,012 thousand among men. These increasing instances of chronic diseases specifically influence the growth of the UAE ventilator market in the forecast years.

Market Segmentation

The UAE ventilator market is segmented by an interface, product type, mobility, mode, source, end user, competitive landscape, and regional distribution. Based on interface, the market is differentiated between invasive ventilation and non-invasive ventilation. By product type, the market is divided between adult/pediatric and neonatal/infant. Based on mobility, the market is further segmented into standalone and portable. By mode, the market is fragmented into pressure, volume, combines, and others. Based on source, the market is fragmented into domestic and import. By end user, the market is bifurcated into hospitals & clinics, ambulatory care centers, emergency medical services, and home care. The market analysis also studies the regional segmentation to devise regional market segmentation, dividing Abu Dhabi, Sharjah, Dubai, and the rest of UAE.
