Abstracts

United States Bisphenol S demand stood at 11.54 Thousand Tonnes in 2020 and is forecast to reach 86.09 Thousand Tonnes by 2030, growing at a healthy CAGR of 20.50% until 2030. United States is the largest consumer of Bisphenol S in North America due to the presence of a large number of thermal paper as well as paint and coating manufacturers. Thermal paper is consumed in point of sale online billings and food and beverages labeling. Increasing demand for thermal paper exports to Latin America and Middle Eastern nations is also driving the demand for Bisphenol S in the United States. USFDA has amended its regulations to no longer provide for the use of Bisphenol A-based polycarbonate resins in baby bottles, sippy cups, and packaging for infant formula, which is driving the demand for Bisphenol S, considered an eco-friendly alternative to Bisphenol-A. Growth in the construction sector is generating healthy demand for epoxy resin, a major end-user of Bisphenol S, thus raising the demand for Bisphenol S in the USA. Besides, demand for Bisphenol S derivatives such as phenolic resin and polyurethane across various industries is expected to propel the United States Bisphenol S market. COVID-19 pandemic had a severe impact on the Bisphenol S market due to a major economic disruption. The government imposed lockdown restrictions to contain the spread of the virus resulted in declined demand for Bisphenol S with shutting down of manufacturing units, disturbed the distribution channels, and restricted mobility of goods and personnel. However, the government is slowly controlling the consequences, and the Bisphenol S market is regaining its composure due to resuming of construction and industrialization activities.
