Abstracts

Kermel is a leading producer of meta-aramid fibres for use in the manufacture of totally non-flammable and thermo-stable products. The company produces Kermel fibre and Kermel Tech fibres which form the basis of a diverse range of products. Kermel has performed well in recent years, despite the global financial crisis. The company maintains its performance by continuing to diversify its global markets and its product stream. The market for meta-aramids is continuing to grow, and therefore offers a bright future for Kermel to exploit its diversification strategy. This report provides detailed information on Kermel's fibres and products, and their end use markets. Also, it includes an assessment of the company's development, financial performance, environmental performance and main competitors, and presents an outlook for the future.
